

The technologies offered typically so favor the copyright holder, that the doctrine of fair use becomes impossible for the consumer to legally exercise. When combined with the Digital Millenium Copyright Act, copyright protection on digital television would represent a serious erosion of fair use by the public.

Please, please don't merely consider the media company's interests, and forget the interests of the general public.